In book three of the Dragons of Dragonose: Left badly injured from the horrific attack on Dragonose and in need of time to recover, Dominic follows his best friend, Blain Barrymire and his mate, Natasha, to their Iceland castle. At the castle, Dominic is in a constant struggle with his dragon, Ivormantis, who is stir crazy from not being allowed out. As if fighting to get back to his original warrior ability isn't enough, his mate shows up, adding to his despair because she fears him. Meldamiriel, who is out of options, and running for her life, runs to the only person she has left, Natasha. She arrives at the castle with vampires hot on her heels, leaving her no time to think about the man who is staying at her friend's home even if he is her mate.

When fear has ruled her life for so long, will Meldamiriel be able to overcome it to accept what fate has given her a dragon shifter? Does Dominic win her heart only to lose her as evil moves in to gain the power his mate wields? Or will Meldamiriel face those who wish to harm her and prove to everyone why fate chose her to hold such power?
