Synopsis Books:

Panoramic black-and-white photographs of China, Burma, Nepal, and other East Asian nations.

"Chinese scroll paintings are meant to be read. Rather than taking in the whole painting, you observe a small portion and move along, seeing the landscape change as in a journey. Because it's not possible to take in the entire panoramic photograph in a glance (except at a distance), I think it invites a different kind of reading -- perhaps similar to the scroll."
